the University of Wales

master in INTERIOR AND LIVING DESIGN

investigating the dimensions of living and dwelling

The Master will encourage students to adopt a problem setting attitude and to develop their own poetical language by exploring, experiencing and constantly questioning the meaning of their own work.

DURATION

13 months

ACADEMIC YEAR

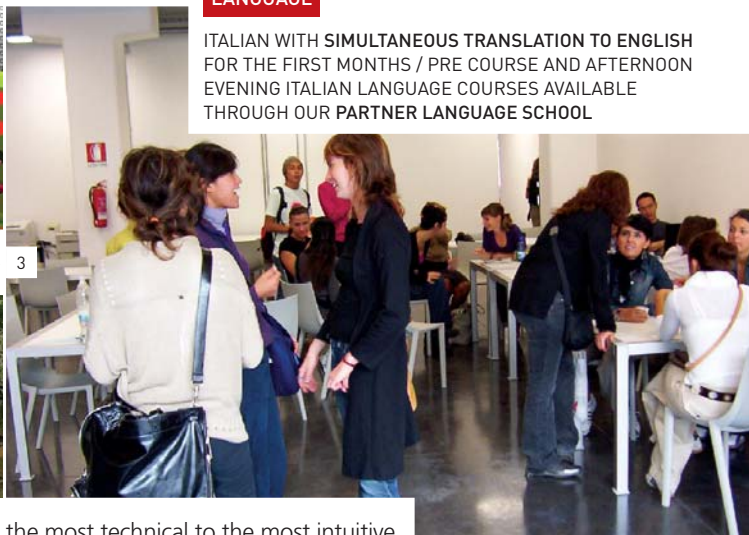

from November to December

THE COURSE

In the first eight months, the program is organized through a theoretical session, with Languages, Strategy and Research lectures, and a practical one with thematic workshops and technical visits. This course allows students to become conversant with the use of design tools for industrial and handicraft production and for functional and stylistic transformations as perceived by the consumer. The last months of the programs are dedicated to the final Master thesis.

WORKSHOPS

The project areas explored through workshops allow to thoroughly experiment all the different issues related to the Interior Design world. The workshops, 5 or 6 per year, will be supervised by a project leader and a project tutor.

FINAL MASTER THESIS

The thesis is the last phase of the course, structured like a big theme-based design competition. Students will carry out an original research at a high level in a specific area, applying a theoretical, analytical and reflective approach to specific problems.

THE OBJECTIVE

The course provides a cultural knowledge that is halfway between the arts and other disciplines and that represents the access codes to the new world. The Master explores all the aspects concerning interior design, from the most technical to the most intuitive ones, to make students fully understand the meaning of the words to live, to dwell, to use.

THE AUDIENCE

MILD is aimed at young graduates or professionals who wish to broaden or improve their abilities with cultural and technical tools and are interested in following an advanced in-depth course.

THE FUTURE

MILD is a Master in living design innovation that aims at creating a new profession: a spaces and services designer who knows how to combine technical/design knowledge and solid cultural background with the strategic ability to identify new scenarios for contemporary living.
