THE COURSE

The academic year is divided into two parts: the first one is dedicated to a full immersion teamwork project; the second one is devoted to the development of an individual thesis. In the first part, there will be a set of theoretical lessons and technical visits to architectural sites. This is followed by a series of lectures and workshops with the aim of updating the skills acquired by the students in their previous studies, bringing them towards a common vision of the problems related to the territory and its architectural sites.

FINAL MASTER THESIS

The Master thesis is the last part of the course where students, under the guidance of a project leader, will carry out an original high-level research in a specific area, applying a theoretical, analytical and reflective approach to specific problems.

THE OBJECTIVE

Sourcing solutions for a future-orientated contemporary project and investigating all the materials produced by the urban experience. This course has a solid teaching and cognitive structure that develops training of excellence and an ability to reflect on the changes and transformations of the built environment, by promoting permanent research activities for adequate and innovative models and design solutions.

THE AUDIENCE

MUMAD addresses young professionals as well as young graduates and final year university students in urban, architectural, economics, human science, social and communication disciplines.

THE FUTURE

A range of different career or requalification opportunities are envisaged: public administration, on a local, national and international level; project managers in territorial development agencies, real estate companies, NGOs, non-profit organizations, etc.; in engineering or architecture studios; freelancers, as urban designers, planners, advisors or consultants.
